1. Air activity observed at Finow airfield from 10 March through 1 April 1953 included:

10 March. From 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m., there was flying at the field in fair weather. Once 11 MiG-15s were seen flying in squadron wedge formation of flight wedges. Source repeatedly saw formations of four planes in wedge formation and also high altitude flights by individual MiG-15s.

11 March. From 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., individual and formation flying was conducted at altitudes of up to 5,000 meters. Wedge formations of four planes and formations of two planes were seen. The weather was fair. A type-29 plane was definitely identified.

16 March. At 8:20 a.m., four Yake-11s flew circles over the field. Formation flying was practiced in the afternoon. Formations of 11 and 10 MiG-15s were observed. Formations of 5, 3 and 2 planes were repeatedly seen. Some MiG-15s or type-29 planes made high altitude flights. One plane was seen towing an air sleeve.

17 March. From 8 a.m. to 2 p.m., individual and formation flying and firing at an air sleeve towed by a MiG-15 were observed. The weather was fair.

18 and 19 March. Air activity was much lighter than on the preceding days although the weather was fair.

23 March. Between 5 and 6 p.m., source observed that the alert flight at the field consisted of four MiG-15s

Two other MiG-15s were seen immediately west of the alert flight, while 35 MiG-15s and type-29 planes were parked at the northern edge of the installation. Another estimated 10 MiG-15s or type-29 planes were available at the field.
